KATHLEEN HAY DESIGNS

In this master bedroom, a couple with three young girls wanted a serene bit of refuge that was removed from the rest of the house for quiet and privacy. The clients prefer soft, neutral tones, so visual interest was brought in with sumptuous textures and patterns, and reflective surfaces and mirrors add a touch of glam to the cloud-like palette of layered creams, whites and silvers. One of the biggest hurdles was the scale of the large, vaulted room, and by carving out separate areas to lounge, nap and read—like the daybed by the window framed in custom drapery—the space still exudes a sense of intimacy. The contemporary fireplace, clad in chunky yet glistening quartz, grounds the room with its solid yet airy façade. When the light hits, the quartz shimmers in the center of this glam-infused retreat.
